Overview:Excellent investment opportunity in the heart of Fuengirola. A plot of approximately 120 m² with an existing house, the structure of which is of little interest for preservation, offering the possibility of developing a new residential project. Due to its characteristics and location, the property is particularly attractive to developers and investors looking to build a small residential building in the center of Fuengirola, one of the most sought-after areas on the Costa del Sol. According to available urban planning information and subject to the corresponding municipal verification and certification, the plot would be classified under the VP-1 (Popular Housing) zoning ordinance, a typology that allows for high occupancy on small plots. The urban development plan could include, subject to confirmation through a detailed study of the plot, a building with a ground floor plus two upper floors and an attic/penthouse, always subject to the building regulations, height restrictions, courtyards, alignments, and other parameters established by the Fuengirola General Urban Development Plan (PGOU). The plot measures approximately 120 m², with an existing building of 139 m², and approximate dimensions of 6 m frontage by 20 m depth. This is an opportunity especially for investors and developers seeking a plot with new construction potential in a central and well-established location in Fuengirola.
